Greeting Card Verses For Nontraditional Situations & Relationships Marilyn Haight
NOT Your Typical Greetings! Not poetry, either--just plain, heartfelt talk.

What do you say in response to a friend's coming out announcement? Or when someone you care about marries a person of a different race or generation? Or when you're invited to attend a same-sex marriage? Or to newly located biological relatives? Or to support the lifestyle transition of a transgender relative? Or to be supportive of someone whose religious beliefs differ from yours? Or when a friend or relative is diagnosed with a life-threatening or terminal illness?

Ideally suited for blank cards, these verses address ONLY nontraditional or uncommon situations and relationships--those that are exceptions to the mainstream. They help you bridge differences in age; race; personality style; politics; religion; sexual orientation; social context; and more.

When you want to acknowledge and respect the uniqueness of the occasion or person, this book offers hundreds of appropriate sentiments! Here are two examples:

For a person serving at war in the military:

"We admire and are grateful for your service as you take care of this very important business on behalf of our country and all of its citizens."

For a holiday that you do not celebrate:

"Happy/Merry _____ [fill in the name of the holiday]. We know this day is special for you and, though it is not one of our holidays, we are remembering you and wishing you a very happy celebration."
