~3 Novellas in 1~ The Ever Knight: A Saxon Thane's daughter, born with mystical healing strength, must choose between two lusty Norman knights, half-brothers, each intent on claiming her for their own. One man has claimed her dowry; the other has claimed her virginity. One man is dying of a battle wound and the other has scars that can't be seen by the naked eye. Both brothers need her healing touch. Both brothers need her. And she needs them. Jisella always knew that one day her Ever Knight would arrive – the soul she's loved since time began. Yet he's taken a long time to find her in this life and now she's not sure which of these handsome Knights is the one for whom she's waited. The brothers are all too happy to compete for their lady's favors. Perhaps there is only one fair decision. Perhaps she can have both, if they might be persuaded to share. The Virgin Proxy: When the Normans conquered England, Deorwynn lost almost everything, including her family. Only one beloved brother survives. To rescue him, she must sacrifice her virginity in the enemy's bed. She should be well prepared. After spending fifteen years in a grim convent, punished for every sinful thought, Deorwynn can withstand any torment at the hands of a merciless, Norman warrior. But nothing, she soon learns, could prepare her for falling in love. Guy Devaux is delighted with the amorous virgin waiting for him on his wedding night. There's only one problem. The saucy-mouthed wench is not his bride. Oh yes, he knows the veiled woman in his bed is an imposter, but he'll go along with the game. For now. The punishment for her deception will come later. Just as soon as he conquers this foolish desire, this yearning to hear her say she loves him. The Craftsman: Raedwulf, son of a Saxon noble, is finally released from William the Conqueror's prison. Unfortunately, this amnesty is conditional on an arranged marriage, but he just wants to be left in peace with his carpentry. The last thing he needs is a woman forced to bed him out of duty. Emma is newly widowed. Believed barren, she never expected to marry again and planned to enter a convent. Instead, a fateful mistake sends her to this quiet, brooding man, who spends long hours alone with his woodwork. She's stunned to learn that "Wulf" is a virgin, especially when she sees the magnificent craftsman's tool in his breeches. Before they are parted by the truth, can she teach Wulf to use that splendid, God-given implement with the same skill as he wields those in his workshop? Or will Emma learn some lessons of her own at the hands of The Craftsman?
