NEW ZEALAND is the world's most exciting education destination. Students from all around the world flock to the country to study. Why do they come to New Zealand? How do they select their institute and program? What do they study? What work do they do? Do they survive and thrive or crash and burn? And what must you do, as a potential student, to be successful in New Zealand? This guide book explores the experiences of a group of Indian students in New Zealand. You will experience New Zealand through the eyes of these students. Through conversations with them, you will understand, learn, and be better prepared for studying in New Zealand. Dr. Mark Rodrigues, PG Diploma (IMI, India), MBA (McGill, Canada), PhD (Waikato, New Zealand) goes beyond the marketing hype to uncover factual, real life, accounts of what actually happens to students in New Zealand. The best people to guide future students are those who have undergone the process themselves as they know the positives and the pitfalls. Listen to them, and learn from their stories.
