Excerpt from Pontiac: Chief of the Ottowas, a Tale of the Siege of Detroit

Captain Horst, in charge of the small schooner Gladwyn from Niagara, was ascending the Detroit river, on his way to the frontier post of Detroit, which had been besieged for several months by the great Pontiac, chief of the Ottowas. It was the dream of that leader, as it had been of King Philip, nearly a century before, to unite all of his race against the whites and to wage a remorseless war which should not end until the last pale face was driven from the hunting grounds of the red men.

The reader of American history hardly needs to be reminded that at the conclusion of the French and Indian war, France gave up by treaty all her domain in the new world.
