Farming With Green Manures, on Plumgrove Farm (Classic Reprint) Caleb Harlan

In publishing these pages, I have two objects in view - the assistance of those who need advice - and the instruction of my foreman on the farm, that he may understand the reason why he is required to do certain things. But how should I know any better than he does, the laws of vegetable life, and the best course to pursue to obtain remunerative crops? He is supposed to be practically acquainted with the whole Art of Agriculture. Now, the fact must be plain to every one, that no man, in his short life, by his own experience and observation, can become master of this Art, because it takes a whole year to try one experiment. From this fact, his progress in knowledge must be very slow indeed. Well, then, besides the actual trials on the farm, to improve his mind, the next best thing to do, is to study carefully the recorded experience of other farmers and the writings of the able investigators of the chemistry of plant life. To do this with profit, he should be acquainted, to a certain degree, with every science which has shed any light upon the subject. Now, the working farmer is generally too much engaged to acquire this knowledge. Well then, if he will please to lay aside all prejudice against me, we will read for him, and report a few of the grand truths, which we find scattered through the vast tome of other times, and the periodicals of our own rushing busy century.
