Some will claim that revenge is sweet, but not Luke. Instead of quietly grieving the loss of his brother, he had deliberately lain in ambush and shot his brother's killer from his saddle, leaving him for dead. That single deed changed Luke's life, but it didn't satisfy or make him feel better. Now he was on the run, fleeing his past more than the law. He was tortured day and night by thoughts of what he had done. Only one thing could bring him peace, but would Luke find it in time? Mindy, a sheltered young woman, had spent the past seven years of her life keeping house for her father. Now her father had remarried and Mindy finds herself free to find a love and life of her own. When a dashing young rancher comes to town, she falls head over heels in love with him, and finds a life she didn't expect. As Mindy seeks help from Luke, can she also help him by showing him how to find peace? To find out, read this exciting story of flight and love.
